Epta is Sustainability Leader 2023 for the third consecutive year. An award attributed by Il Sole 24 Ore and Statista to Italian companies committed to an ecological, ethical, social and governance transition, to highlight their responsibility and success in this area.

Virtuous companies at the top of the ESG revolution

200 virtuous companies at the top of the ESG revolution (Environmental, Social & Governance) have been awarded following a careful analysis of 30 Key Performance Indicators (KPI). Energy consumption, use of energy from renewable sources, emissions, waste management, welfare and transparency policies are just some of the indicators investigated through sustainability reports, integrated reports and financial declarations, to attribute a score out of 100 to each parameter.

3D leadership

Epta's leadership is in 3D, as witnessed by Il Sole 24 Ore and Statista, as well as the Group's integrated report. A document drafted with the desire to show how the vision, governance and performance of Epta create value for the stakeholders, fully respecting the ESG criteria.

"Innovation and sustainability are the cornerstone of Epta's entire business, to look with awareness at the contemporary challenges and increasingly meet rigorous standards in terms of reducing the carbon footprint. To achieve this, it is essential to develop an integrated and inclusive approach in defining business strategies, programming activities, and implementing a report which includes operational performance with financial and non-financial performance." Comments Marco Nocivelli, CEO of Epta, who concludes "We are proud to have received the Sustainability Leader award for the third consecutive year. This shows how Epta is continuing in the right direction, further consolidating the importance of environmental and social issues in its day-to-day life."
